On 9/17/11, the following demonstrations occurred during the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) 66:

At 1222 hours, LT. NYPD, notified the PICC of the following demonstration located near the Wall Street Bull, at the intersection of Broadway and Wall Street, north of Bowling Green Park: Approximately 200 individuals assembled in the financial district to stage a nationwide "Day of Rage" to protest capitalism, government corruption and the influence of money on U.S. politics. The demonstrators were observed carrying flags and signs with the verbiage "Don't let Georgia Kill Innocent Men" and chanting "Shut Down Wall Street." Several individuals were also wearing masks. NYPD, who monitored the demonstration, advised the demonstration received media attention and concluded at approximately 1500 HRS without incident.

Open source reporting stated the "Day of Rage" is being supported by internet groups who oppose corruption in the government such as Adbusters (NRID), Culture Jammers (NRID), both anti-consumerist organizations, and Anonymous (NRID), an online hacker group. Flyers, which also circulated online, called for people to “flood into lower Manhattan, set up beds, kitchens, peaceful barricades and occupy Wall Street for a few months.” They compared their cause to protesters in Egypt, Greece, Spain and Iceland. The groups used social media, such as Facebook, Twitter, and Livestream to publicize the event and give live updates. Several open source media outlets reported between 700-1000 individuals participated in the demonstration mentioned above.

The above demonstrations will be included in the UNGA 66 - PICC daily brief, dated 9/18/11.

On 09/19/11, at 14:10 hours, USSS/PID notified the PICC of the following demonstration located near the Wall Street Bull at the intersection of Broadway and Wall Street, north of Bowling Green Park: Approximately 500 individuals assembled in the financial district to stage a nationwide "Day of Rage" to protest capitalism, government corruption and the influence of money on U.S. politics. The demonstrators were observed carrying flags and signs with the verbiage "Don't let Georgia Kill Innocent Men" and chanting "Shut Down Wall Street." Several individuals were also wearing masks. Open source reporting stated the "Day of Rage" is being supported by internet groups such as Adbusters (NRID), Culture Jammers (NRID), both anti-consumerist organizations, and Anonymous (RID; 127-673-0086639), an online hacker group, who all oppose corruption in the government. Flyers, which also circulated online, called for people to "flood into lower Manhattan, set up beds, kitchens, peaceful barricades and occupy Wall Street for a few months." The idea, according to some organizers, was to camp out for weeks or even months to replicate the kind, if not the scale, of protests that erupted earlier this year in places as varied as Egypt, Spain and Israel. The goal of the sit-in was to send a message to President Obama to establish a commission to end "the influence money has over our representatives in Washington," according to the Ad Busters website. According to the Ad Busters website, the goal of the sit-in was to send a message to President Obama to establish a commission to end "the influence money has over our representatives in Washington." The Day of Rage is described as an antithesis to the Tea Party movement that protects the very institutions that got us here and blindly lays blame on the current economic mess on President Obama. The groups use social media outlets, such as Facebook, Twitter, and Livestream to publicize the event and give live updates. This is an ongoing demonstration and approximately 150 protestors are participating in overnight sit-ins at the aforementioned location. NYPD and USSS/PI teams will continue to monitor the situation. This demonstration has received media attention and organizers have advised they will continue to protest for approximately 2 months. No civil disobedience is expected.

FAB: On 9/19/11, seven (7) demonstrations were conducted by various groups in NYC during UNGA 66. No incidents were reported and no protectee movements were affected.
On 09/19/11, at 1410 hours, USSS/PID notified the PICC of the following demonstration located near the Wall Street Bull at the intersection of Broadway and Wall Street, north of Bowling Green Park: Approximately 500 individuals assembled in the financial district to stage a nationwide "Day of Rage" to protest capitalism, government corruption and the influence of money on U.S. politics. The demonstrators were observed carrying flags and signs with the verbiage "Don't let Georgia Kill Innocent Men" and chanting "Shut Down Wall Street." Several individuals were also wearing masks. Open source reporting stated the "Day of Rage" is being supported by internet groups such as Adbusters (NRID), Culture Jammers (NRID), both anti-consumerist organizations, and Anonymous (RID; 127-673-0086639), an online hacker group, who all oppose corruption in the government. Flyers, which also circulated online, called for people to "flood into lower Manhattan, set up beds, kitchens, peaceful barricades and occupy Wall Street for a few months." The idea, according to some organizers, was to camp out for weeks or even months to replicate the kind, if not the scale, of protests that erupted earlier this year in places as varied as Egypt, Spain and Israel. The goal of the sit-in was to send a message to President Obama to establish a commission to end "the influence money has over our representatives in Washington," according to the Ad Busters website. According to the Ad Busters website, the goal of the sit-in was to send a message to President Obama to establish a commission to end "the influence money has over our representatives in Washington." The Day of Rage is described as an antithesis to the Tea Party movement that protects the very institutions that got us here and blindly lays blame on the current economic mess on President Obama. The groups use social media outlets, such as Facebook, Twitter, and Livestream to publicize the event and give live updates. This is an ongoing demonstration and approximately 150 protesters are participating in overnight sit-ins at the aforementioned location. NYPD and USSS/PI teams will continue to monitor the situation. This demonstration has received media attention and organizers have advised they will continue to protest for approximately 2 months. No civil disobedience is expected.

Subject: 2 Liberty Items

Good morning again. I read about the below proposed “protest” in the Herald this morning. I have not heard much of an update, but the Liberty folks that monitor Media streams are watching for updates. When groups do march from the Common to Copley, (most recently the SEIU) they usually use St James Ave, one full block from your meeting address.

Any questions or concerns, please let me know.
Office phone is best until 5PM.
Summary of Occupy Boston:

Occupy Wall Street is a small group (approximately 80 people) currently protesting what they consider to be the “heavy hand” that American corporations play in the formulation of social and government policy. Members of the group are displeased with the current economic state and hold large corporations responsible for the fact that they are unable to find employment, despite earning college degrees. The group earned the attention of the media after alleging excessive use of force by arresting NYPD officers.

Occupy Boston is an as-of-yet unorganized collection of people wishing to support the protests currently taking place on Wall Street. They are spreading their message through the use of social media sites, such as Facebook and Twitter. Although members are joining fairly rapidly, as of 0930 on 9/26/11 there are only 800 fans of their Facebook page. Message activity has died down substantially over the last 12 hours, and the most recent messages indicate a lack of consensus regarding the most suitable gathering location. So far suggestions from message posters have included the following locations: Boston Commons, Post Office Square, the Bank of America building, The State House and Copley Square. There are no messages indicating a planned use of violence.

New Information: The group is now publicizing a protest time and location. The first protest will take place at the Gazebo in the Boston Commons at 7pm tomorrow night.

Sir,
This pretty much encapsulates everything. Again, I apologize for not looping you both in right away. At this time we're not looking for additional assets other than what DC has noted. And TS and the working shift will have a plan in place and briefed. I will be on campus also.

Sir,
Non Responsive has put us in excellent shape manpower wise for Sunday and we will be able to handle multiple incidents and/or clear an intersection if needed. Because of this, I don't see an immediate need
Staff is aware of the demo and relevant information concerning the scheduled activities, temporary closure of vehicle gates, and entry points where UD personnel will be posted.

Thanks for the info and for the post augmentations.
We will come up with an emergency egress plan. Will we be supplementing ERT? I assume staff is aware of this?

Thank you,

All.

As of Wednesday, 11/2/11, the United States Park Police (USPP) has advised the demonstration is expected to be as large as 4,000 participants (3,000 Tar Sands participants and 1,000 participants from other groups such as Occupy DC and Code Pink). Tar Sands organizers have told the USPP they are not planning on having any members of their group arrested, however, intelligence officers have obtained information (internet) planning for large scale arrests.

Information from one of the organization’s website: “The November 6th action in DC is shaping up to be a historical mobilization for this movement. As Mark describes it, “We’re going to make a Human Chain around the White House — to remind Obama to unlink his arms with the corporations, the gas and oil industry, and entwine his arms with the people that he is in charge of taking care of.”

General Information about the group\demo:

Purpose: Free Speech Demonstration
Location: Lafayette Park

Timeline:
1100-1400 hours – Group - Set up
1400-1730 hours – Demonstration (Lafayette Park & Penn Ave)
1530-1630 hours – March (Hands around the White House)
1730-2100 hours - Clean Up

Potential conflicts:

Access to/from the White House Complex during the march could be impeded as the demonstrators have planned to “Hold hands around the White House”. The anticipated line is 15th Street, Penn Ave, 17th Street and “E” Street (south side by the zero milestone). The South Fence line will be closed by the On Duty Watch Commander during the march.
MPDC SOD will provide an escort for the demonstration on 15th Street, 17th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.

The Tar Sands group has advised the demonstration on 11/6/11 is purposely scheduled for that date because it is exactly one year prior to the next Presidential election. The group also has plans to demonstrate at publically announced POTUS sites throughout the next year.

HPD is reporting graffiti chalking on sidewalks fronting and across the Convention Center.

About 12 activists appearing to be teenagers. Possibly from Occupy Honolulu group.

Many slogans. APEC Sucks, Revolution, Global Warming, stuff on homeless. Convention Center side was being watered down and removed. Lots across the street. I will try get pictures during daylight.

No criminal offense if only chalk used. No threatening writings seen.

New Facebook page: "Occupy Tampa for the Republican National Convention"

Here's yet another manifestation of the movement that started with Occupy Wall Street: a new Facebook page titled "Occupy Tampa for the Republican National Convention."

On Oct. 28, the page's administrator issued this invitation: "Why not practice your 1st amendment rights (if we still have them in August), and get a nice tan at the same time?"

Since then, the page has featured posts about California's medical marijuana industry, a low-tech way to annoy credit card companies and suggestions about using over-the-counter liquid antacids as possible antidotes to a tear gas attack.

Then there was this offer, courtesy of the page's sponsor: "If you end up getting a picture (and or video) of ANY family values oriented conservative Republican visiting one of Tampa's many adult night clubs -- you will WIN A FREE T-SHIRT! It's just a regular T-shirt but I'll be happy to buy it for you. How fun is this convention occupation gonna be?"

Good afternoon.

As you may remember, FPOTUS George W Bush recently visited Goldman Sachs in NYC. The Occupy Wall Street group tweeted FPOTUS Bush’s whereabouts and called for their supporters to protest him in front of Goldman Sachs, which they did without incident.

I know the budget may not allow for overtime or holiday scheduling, please let me know and we will attempt to make other arrangements through our field office. Thank you for your assistance.

Good afternoon.

As you may remember, FPOTUS George W Bush recently visited Goldman Sachs in NYC. The Occupy Wall Street group tweeted FPOTUS Bush's whereabouts and called for their supporters to protest him in front of Goldman Sachs, which they did without incident.

I know the budget may not allow for overtime or holiday scheduling. Please let me know and we will attempt to make other arrangements through our field office. Thank you for your assistance.

"Occupy protesters plan march from NYC to DC
Associated Press
NEW YORK — Occupy Wall Street is going on the road — a two-week walk to Washington.

A small group of activists plans to leave Manhattan's Zuccotti Park at noon Wednesday and arrive by the Nov. 23 deadline for a congressional committee to decide whether to keep President Barack Obama's extension of Bush-era tax cuts. Protesters say the cuts benefit only rich Americans.

The announcement came the same day that David Crosby and Graham Nash, of Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, planned an acoustic performance in the park for supports and passers-by.

Kelley Brannon is organizing the 240-mile march through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland with a core group of a dozen activists, picking up other marchers along the way — even if for a day, or only an hour, they say.

"Occupy the Highway" — as it's been dubbed — will start from the Manhattan park where the first Occupy encampment was set up, with a ferry ride across the Hudson River from West 34th Street to Elizabeth, N.J.

Brannon likened the effort to the long-distance marches led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. during the civil rights era.

"I mean, I'm not comparing us to Martin Luther King," said Brannon, of Queens, referring to three marches King led in 1965 from Selma, Ala., to the state Capitol in Montgomery. Those marches ranged in size from 600 to 8,000 people.

"That's the premise Occupy is taking to the road: the historic relevance of such long-distance marches for social causes," Brannon said.

They'll overnight by camping or at volunteered accommodations, she said.

They are to join Occupy D.C. protesters in McPherson Square the evening of Nov. 22, then walk to the Capitol and the White House the next day.

The Joint Select Committee on Deficit Reduction must decide by Nov. 23 to cut $1.2 trillion from the deficit; the tax issue is only one bitter bone of contention among politicians. But it's the top issue for the Occupy activists heading to Washington.

New York's multibillionaire mayor, Michael Bloomberg, whom many protesters consider their adversary as one of America's wealthiest "1 percent," has also called for ending the tax cuts.

"Interesting — but I'm not a Bloomberg supporter," said the 27-year-old Brannon. "I'm not really impressed with what he's doing, though we agree on this one little thing."

The march is being funded with an initial $3,000 approved at Occupy Wall Street's "general assembly" — a daily gathering of protesters to make decisions. The money comes from donations of at least a half-million dollars sent to the New York movement by supporters.

The marchers expect to get more support of both money and supplies along the way — an average of about 20 miles a day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., walking on highway shoulders, where it's allowed, or on local roads.

They'll hold nightly discussions — along the lines of their general assemblies, at 7 p.m. wherever they are, as they pass through cities with an Occupy presence, such as Philadelphia and Baltimore, as well as towns and rural communities not yet involved.

Update

One social network post has that "we're planning a big pipeline protest at Obama HQ in Chicago this month."

Further searching has found that there was a protest at the White House on 6 Nov in regards to "reject Keystone XL tar sands pipeline." The pipeline would carry crude oil south from Alberta, Canada through six states to refineries on the Gulf Coast. The Sierra Club posted that 12,000 people were at the protest.

28 Nov was mentioned as a possible date for visits to Obama 2012 campaign offices in all 50 states and another post had the "Occupy Movement" mentioned in relation to the pipeline protest.

Previous Information

Intelligence Section personnel received information that "Occupy Chicago" may join the planned librarian protest at Daley Plaza tomorrow with a "die in" by its members and possibly marching to Daley Plaza.

A "die in" will take place at a predetermined time when all members of the protest fall to the ground as if dead. They may also throw fake money into the air as they fall to the ground.

Also, before or after the General Assembly meeting (1900 to 2100 hours), the route of the protest march will include President Obama's Campaign Headquarters at Randolph and Michigan.

Info from Chicago PD - Intel:

Update

One social network post has that "we're planning a big pipeline protest at Obama HQ in Chicago this month."

Further searching has found that there was a protest at the White House on 6 Nov in regards to "reject Keystone XL tar sands pipeline." The pipeline would carry crude oil south from Alberta, Canada through six states to refineries on the Gulf Coast. The Sierra Club posted that 12,000 people were at the protest.

28 Nov was mentioned as a possible date for visits to Obama 2012 campaign offices in all 50 states and another post had the "Occupy Movement" mentioned in relation to the pipeline protest.

Previous Information

Intelligence Section personnel received information that "Occupy Chicago" may join the planned librarian protest at Daley Plaza tomorrow with a "die in" by its members and possibly marching to Daley Plaza.

A "die in" will take place at a predetermined time when all members of the protest fall to the ground as if dead. They may also throw fake money into the air as they fall to the ground.

Also, before or after the General Assembly meeting (1900 to 2100 hours), the route of the protest march will include President Obama's Campaign Headquarters at Randolph and Michigan.

As noted, the World Financial Center event is the primary concern since Zuccotti Park is only blocks away.

Occupy Wall St. protestors used Twitter to organize outside an 11/2 in the nearby Financial District.

If you have any questions, please call my cell phone any time. Let's touch base either tomorrow or Thursday.
Thank you in advance.

Good afternoon.

As you may remember, FPOTUS George W Bush recently visited Goldman Sachs in NYC. The Occupy Wall Street group tweeted FPOTUS Bush’s whereabouts and called for their supporters to protest him in front of Goldman Sachs, which they did without incident.
I know the budget may not allow for overtime or holiday scheduling. Please let me know and we will attempt to make other arrangements through our field office. Thank you for your assistance.

flotilla planned ... moana surf flotilla against apec

saturday, nov. 12, 2011 ... meet @ old stadium park @ 0900 hours

ey they will car pool and drive out to waikiki at 0945 hours ....

due to the fact that we are practically under martial law in waikiki, we highly recommend meeting at old stadium park. please bring whatever flotation device you can (reasonable size for carpooling purposes. join the 99% who are determined to let the APEC (the 1%) know that we are in strong opposition to their corporate centered policies and pursuit of global governance. it's not about free trade, it's about big corporations and government elites seeking to abuse people and their natural resources for their profits.

we will be in the water exercising our right to freedom of speech. our protest is peaceful and we will make our voices heard that their policies are violent.
tonight ... they will be making special signs at thomas square (1830 hours)
